

Such tobacco enjoyment

as you never thought could be is yours to command quick as you buy some Prince Albert and fire-up a pipe or a home-made cigarette!

Prince Albert gives you every tobacco satisfaction your smoke-appetite ever hankered for. That's because it's made by a patented process that cuts out bite and parch! Prince Albert has always been sold without coupons or premiums. We prefer to give quality!

PRINCE ALBERT

has a flavor as different as it is delightful. You never tasted the like of it! And that isn't strange, either.

Buy Prince Albert every-where tobacco is sold in tippy red bags, 5c; tippy red tins, 10c; handsome pound and half-pound tins, 25c; and—just corking fine—pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener tops that keep the tobacco in such closer trim—always!

Men who think they can't smoke a pipe or roll a cigarette can smoke and will smoke if they use Prince Albert. And smokers who have not yet given P. A. a try-out certainly have a big surprise and a lot of enjoyment coming their way as soon as they invest in a supply. Prince Albert tobacco will tell its own story!

R. J. REYNOLDS TOBACCO CO., Winston-Salem, N. C.

On the reverse side of this tippy red tin you will read: "Prince Albert, Patented July 30th, 1907, which has made three non-smokers pipe smokers before!"

HERO WORSHIP TOO COMMON

Abundant Failing Which Seems to Have Remarkable Hold on Majority of Mankind.

Americans, like most other people, are disposed to do a moderate amount of hero worship. One phase of it, says the Kansas City Star, is the respectful hearing given on all subjects to a man who has made a success in some one line. If a man is highly successful in manufacturing tooth brushes we assume that he knows all about art and science.

"There is Smith," we say. "He is a phenomenal maker of socks. He can turn them out at the rate of 10,000 pairs a minute. He is getting rich by his ability to make socks so rapidly without dropping stitches in them. Besides, it is said the socks really wear well. That being the case, what do you suppose he thinks about the ethics of that Chicago baby case? Let us get his opinion as to the desirability of encouraging the modern schools of art. We surely must ask him what to do about typhoid vaccination. When does he think the war will end?"

Of course, Smith may never have given any attention to these subjects. He may have been so busy perfecting the machine for speeding up without dropping stitches that he may have no ideas whatever of the European war or the immortality of the soul or the higher criticism of the Bible or the advisability of masticating one's food thoroughly, or the relative advantages of Corot and Troyon as painters.

Still, we write him letters and ask him his views. Unless he is a very remarkable man he takes the questions seriously, is immensely flattered by them, and by and by comes to think that having been successful in making socks he must be equally successful in every other line of human endeavor.

Of course, if he fails for this sort of thing, in time he is bound to make some perfectly fool statement. When he does this, we are all as likely as not to turn and read him for being an ass, when the original trouble was with those of us who insisted on his qualifying as an expert on subjects that he knew nothing about.

FROM THE GARDEN OF EDEN

World's Markets Supplied With Dates Which Are Grown on Spot Believed to Be the Site.

The London markets and stalls are covered with dates which come from the Garden of Eden.

A palm tree yields approximately 400 pounds of fruit annually, which represents an income of about £3. It takes nearly eight years to attain this state of perfection, but when once reached, it continues for almost a century.

Dates can be prepared in many ways, and are packed according to the country to which they are being sent. For instance, dates destined for America are hand-picked, as the Americans will have no others; the Indians like them sundried; while we like them "wet." Our dates are prepared in a special manner—they are pitted on matting and trampled into a mass.

The date is not the only product of the palm. The stem furnishes a kind of timber, and the fibers, twisted, become rope. Then, again, the buds are quite fit to eat, and are considered by some to be a delicacy; and peasants, too poor to afford a house, weave the fronds into matting, and so make quite a serviceable habitation. Canned date-stones form food for the cattle—London Answers.

Regimental Journalism.

Steps have been taken by the authorities of the British museum to secure as complete a collection as possible of the regimental periodicals, the production of which is one of the curious features of the present war. Some of these publications are printed and others typewritten. They are not quite without analogy in the history of past wars. The British who were besieged at Mafeking during the Boer war contrived to keep going a little journal issued daily, "shells permitting."

In the wars of about a century ago Lord Exmouth, while carrying out a blockade of French ports, had a printing press set up for the amusement of officers and men engaged in that tedious duty. They did not attempt to produce any original records or literary matter of their own, but they printed several considerable works, and printed them, it is said, very well.

Rabies.

A case of rabies reported in England last spring was the first in that country since 1902, and occurred in a dog that was being held in the six months' quarantine which the English law imposes on all dogs brought into the country to prevent the introduction of this disease. Rabies was hatched from England by muzzling Australia and New Zealand have never had any cases of rabies, and a system of quarantine and inspection prevents its introduction. Sweden, Norway and Denmark are practically free from it—Scientific American.

Awakening.

"Geraldine is growing cynical," said one girl. "Why do you think so?" inquired the other. "She confided to me that she doesn't believe half the poetry people send in valentines comes from the heart."

CAT FEEDS STARVING DOG

Strange Pair Live Eight Days on Dried Elk Meat Which Pussy Furnished Companion.

Deputy Game Warden Brown is looking for the hunter who killed an elk in the foothills of the Olympics and left the greater portion of it dried in a small cabin, says the Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Brown's discovery of the elk meat leads with the wanderings of an Alaskan dog.

Brown borrowed the dog from a friend when he started into the hills on a general hunt for lawbreakers, and when well up in the mountains he lost the dog. He failed to locate the animal, and later came to town, thinking it had returned to its home. When he arrived he found that the dog had not appeared, so he started out again to try to locate the animal.

Brown luckily stumbled upon a small cabin well up in the mountains, and here found the dog. Brown investigated the shack and found it well supplied with elk meat, but on the rafters was a small domestic cat that had become wild. The dog had come across the cat, which had sought refuge in the rafters of the cabin. When hungry the cat ate the dried elk meat and dropped pieces to the dog below, both living for more than eight days in this manner.

HAVE LAUGH ON SNOBERLY

His Fellow Members of the Club Likely to Indulge in Their Merriment for Some Time.

Young Snoberly is very anxious to create the impression that he is a don't at French. A few evenings ago, at the club, he took a French comic paper, and for half an hour he pretended to be absorbed in its contents. Every once in a while he would smile feebly, as if he had been carried away by the jokes, and say, audibly, "Bon, tres bon!"

There were several gentlemen at the adjoining table who had been noticing Snoberly's antics. At last one of them said: "See that Snoberly over there pretending to read that French paper? I am certain that he does not understand French. He is just doing that to impress the people with his knowledge as a linguist."

"I suppose he must understand French," replied one of the party. "I'll bet a bottle of wine that he doesn't, and I'll prove it."

"I'll take the bet," The gentleman who had made the bet walked quietly over to Snoberly, and said, "Monsieur, quelle heure est-il?" ("What o'clock is it sir?")

Young Snoberly smiled a Parisian smile, and gracefully handed over the paper—London Tit-Bits.

Leap-Year Advice.

Here is the sage counsel which Miss Lucille Pugh, feminist, suffragist and lawyer, replied to quite pretty—is quoted as offering to all bachelor girls, absolutely without fee, for their leap year guidance, says the New York Evening Sun.

"Propose to the man of your choice, but look up his rating first." Short and to the point. By the recourse to Bradstreet's it is argued that women may avoid unhappiness frequently resulting from penniless marriages. Good!—as far as it goes. But what eminent counselor of the other sex will stand forth to aid his trembling brethren? Such a one might well advise:

"Accept the woman who proposes to you if you like her, but first look up her rating in the domestic arts."

One prerequisite is as far as the other. For the woman: Do not marry for money, but love where money is; for the man: Do not marry to provide yourself with a cook, but while marrying you might as well marry someone who can make out of the place you live in a home. Something more than a liberal income is required to produce "comfortable circumstances" for two.

Talk Costs $54, Tip $10.

Spending money is a part of the life of Barney Oldfield, motor speed king. The great racing driver does not hesitate to satiate his desires, whatever they may be. He has been a guest at the Hotel Muehlebach for three days and has been away from his wife and his home in Los Angeles just a week. Sitting in his room at the hotel the great racing driver got into conversation with his wife by telephone telephone. He talked to her eleven minutes and paid $54.96 for the privilege of the conversation. The odd cent is war tax.

Oldfield is liberal with tips, too. Miss Ann Gaffney, the operator who handled the call for him, will attest to that fact. After the conversation with his wife, the daredevil driver sent a $10 bill to the operator—Kansas City Times.

Pigeons Learn to Swim.

The swimming of blue pigeons—the familiar domestic birds—is the remarkable sight reported to a Dutch natural history journal. Some time ago one of the doves was thrown into the water in a flight and rescued by human aid, and since then they have become more familiar with the water. Pieces of bread noticed in shallow places evidently tempted them at first. Gaining courage, they soon learned to swim, and just before making his report the observer saw two of them sailing around like gulls a few yards from his house. When they tired of the bath they quietly flew out of the water.
